Inglewood Streetlight Renewal

In 2019, the City will begin the 3-year Inglewood Neighbourhood Renewal program to completely rebuild the neighbourhood's streets and sidewalks. One part of this program is the option to include decorative streetlights instead of the standard galvanized aluminum poles. The Community League polled residents for their preferences. The overwhelming majority wanted to have new light poles that match the type chosen by the Westmount neighbourhood.

The City will conduct a vote of property owners in September to determine if the neighbourhood is in favour of this upgrade. For the upgrade to be approved, owners of over 881 properties in Inglewood—more than 50% of all property owners—must agree to the upgrade.

If you are a property owner in Inglewood, watch for your letter from the City asking for your vote. The Community League is preparing to go door-to-door throughout the neighbourhood to answer any questions, encourage people to vote yes, and collect people's ballots to save you the cost of postage. For more information about the streetlight options visit our website or email us at info@inglewoodcl.com.

Infill Monitoring

While the City of Edmonton tries to proactively inspect infill construction sites for compliance to approved development permits and other regulations, not all developments are visited. If you are noticing an issue with the infill development next door to you or throughout the community, you have the ability to flag this for inspection.

Ideally, your first step would be to contact the prime contractor or property owner listed on the development sign situated on the construction site. Expressing your concerns to those in charge of the construction may be all that is needed. If issues persist, then contact the City by calling 311.
